

FLAAR

FLAAR
MESOAMÉRICA

Batman and Crocodile Man

Late Classic Maya 3-Dimensional conjoined Figurines

Museo Popol Vuh,
Universidad Francisco Marroquin

FLAAR Reports
FLAAR (USA) and FLAAR Mesoamerica (Guatemala)

Nicholas Hellmuth
May 2024

Acknowledgements

We appreciate the permissions and access to the Museo Popol Vuh courtesy of the Director and Junta Directiva over many decades. FLAAR had a photo studio here in the late 1990's primarily to accomplish digital rollout photos but also still photos as we see here.

The bat is easy to identify from its wings and nose. The "crocodile" is an estimate since I doubt it is an iguana. Museo Popol Vuh, Universidad Francisco Marroquin. When you visit the museum you can see this ceramic work of art on exhibit.

The fangs on the bat suggest it is a slicer bat of the Popol Vuh, not merely a basic fruit eating bat!

What is needed is photograph from the right side and from the back.